I have before said that Fox News is state TV whenever a republican is in the White House. However true that may be under a ‘normal’ republican president, it is not true under Trump. It is more proper to understand Trump’s White House as a media-run presidency. Many reports over the past four years have shown that Trump religiously watches Fox News and makes decisions based on what he hears. Fox News then sees what the president does and makes excuses for him. It’s like that couple that keeps giving each other herpes. But now, the man who owns Fox News is turning on Trump. From The Daily Beast:

> The Australian-born billionaire is disgusted by Trump’s handling of COVID-19, remarking that the president is his own worst enemy, that he is not listening to advice about how best to handle the pandemic, and that he’s creating a never-ending crisis for his administration, according to three people who have spoken with Murdoch.
>
> In response to an email inquiry for this report asking him if he believes Biden will win in a landslide and his thoughts on Trump’s handling of coronavirus, Murdoch responded, “No comment except I’ve never called Trump an idiot,” referring to a 2018 report that the media mogul called the president a “fucking idiot” following a chat about immigration.

I’ve already published several stories on why this election in 2020 is a real tossup. Experts who’ve accurately predicted 2016 can’t even agree on who will win, while history shows the Biden really has no chance. Just remember, they all said that about Trump, that he had no chance, and he won.
